The Amangiri Experience

Thousands of square miles of untouched scenery surround Amangiri, which lies at the gateway to major national parks in the Colorado Plateau. From canyoneering and cultural insights to excursions by air, bike, boat or on horseback, guests are encouraged to discover the region their way.

Long-standing relationships with local experts allow Amangiri to arrange tailor-made itineraries for every guest - a bespoke approach that guarantees a creative, adventurous and fulfilling experience.

Advance reservations are encouraged. To find out more about the possibilities on offer, or to create a custom itinerary, please contact the Amangiri Experience Team, who will be delighted to assist.

Discover An Ancient Landscape

Awaken the spirit of adventure at Amangiri, in a land where iconic geology reveals millennia of history.

An Ethical Journey

Amangiri is fortunate to call the Colorado Plateau home, but with this honor comes responsibility. To experience the landscape in its unaltered, pristine state, guests are encouraged to travel quietly and lightly on the land.

Cultural artifacts are safeguarded by the Archaeological Resources Protection Act. It is illegal to remove or disturb archaeological or historic sites, or any artifacts, no matter how recent, found on public lands.

It is illegal to carve into any of the rocks, on or off Amangiri property.

Enjoy and learn from historical and archaeological sites, but respect these national treasures. Some are sacred to Native Americans, or are important cultural reminders of pioneer heritage.

Natural objects of beauty or interest, such as antlers, petrified wood and colored rocks, enhance the atmosphere of the backcountry and should be left for others to experience too.

Quick movements and loud noises are stressful to animals. Travel quietly and do not pursue, feed or force animals to flee. Do not touch, get close to, feed or pick up wild animals.

Amangiri thanks guests in advance for joining its effort to protect this fragile environment.

Don't Bust the Crust

The darker-colored, textured veneer that can be found throughout Amangiri is composed of living organisms that are a vital part of the region's ecosystem. They are instrumental in reducing erosion as well as increasing water retention and soil fertility. We encourage our guests to walk in their guide's footsteps and keep to the trail as far as possible to protect these fragile cryptobiotic soils that can take decades to recover.

Experiences for all ages

From hiking to boating and cultural discoveries, Amangiri offers a collection of activities that can be enjoyed by the whole family while creating unique memories. Fun and easy to adapt, these activities will ignite the spirit of adventure in participants of any age. In this guide, the most family-friendly tours will be identified with a specific label.

Enjoy the pool, take part in daily complimentary group hikes or stretch out at morning group yoga.

Desert Hiking Tips

Hike in cooler temperatures

Summer hiking presents challenges that cannot be taken lightly. Plan an early morning or evening departure to take advantage of cooler temperatures. Hiking in direct sunshine, in the middle of the day, increases the risk of a heat-related illness. You will make better time and feel better if you use shaded rest stops often in your travels.

Carry plenty of water

Adequate water intake is critical for a safe and enjoyable trip in the desert environment. When planning a full day's hike, water should be the heaviest item in your pack. Some desert travelers will drink at least a gallon of water per day. While hiking in the desert heat, everyone sweats around 0.5-1 quart of water and electrolytes for every hour they walk in the heat.

Eat adequate amounts

Eating enough food will help guarantee you are replacing the electrolytes (salts) that you are sweating out. You will need two to three times your normal food intake to meet your energy needs while hiking.

Plan your trip carefully

Always tell someone where you are going and when you will return. Check local weather forecasts and road conditions. Summer monsoons and flash floods can make travel in narrow drainages extremely dangerous. Stick with your itinerary, and check in when you return. It is easy to become disoriented in the desert, where many landmarks and rock formations look similar. Amangiri staff members are available to offer advice or help plan an itinerary.

Dress properly

Protect yourself from the elements. Good hiking shoes, loose-fitting breathable fabrics with UPF protection, a wide-brimmed hat, sunglasses and sunscreen are a must. A high SPF sunscreen should be applied liberally and regularly. Desert temperatures can reach over 100 degrees in the middle of the day. In winter, dress in layers and wear warm gloves and a warm hat that covers your ears.
